PREACHER ACQUITTED.

Charges of a Scandalous Nature Had Been Made.

Accusation That He Had Two Living Wives Falls to the Ground.

A church trial of more than usual interest took place at Sulphur Springs last Friday and Saturday, resulting in the vindication of a man who has been the victim of scandalous country gossip.

Rev. J. H. Savage had been sent to the Sulphur Springs circuit by the Methodist conference. He was a preacher of some ability and had no patience with the sins common within the bounds of his charge. In response to his plain preaching the enmity of a portion of the community was aroused, and some time ago scandalous talk regarding him was heard, first in whispers and then more loudly. Finally it reached the ears of the authorities of the church, and an investigation was decided upon.

The trial was held last Friday, and Rev. J. T. Rushing, the presiding elder, presided at the trial. The only charge that the assailants of the minister could be induced to bring up for hearing, was that he was the husband of two living wives.

The charge was investigated and the most that could be made of them was that they were hearsay, based on irresponsible gossip, and Rev. Savage was acquitted and the accusers put to shame.

Tax Case Dismissed.

Quite a little interest was manifested in the actions of Hattie Gilstrap and sixteen others against Sheriff Cal P. Keown, each seeking to recover the sum of $2.00, collected by the Sheriff as the cost of advertising land for taxes.

Judge Miller declined to sit in the tax cases and therefore the bar elected Hon. C. M. Crowe special judge. The Gilstrap case was made a test case, and its trial occupied half of last week. At its conclusion the court dismissed the case and gave Sheriff Keown judgment for his cost.

Hon. C. M. Crowe was a member of the Legislature in 1902 which passed the advertising act, and said in his opinion that it was meant to protect the county, the State and the sheriff, and to compel the payment of taxes by those owing them. The plaintiff was represented by G. B. Likens, while H. P. Taylor and Heavrin & Woodward appeared for Sheriff Keown.

FOND EMBRACE

By Husband May Cost His Wife Her Life.

Corset Stay Broken and Pierced Young Woman's Side--- Blood Poisoning Set In.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 27.—The affection of Earl E. Cornwell for his wife may result in her death, for Saturday evening he hugged her so tightly that a rusty stay in her corset broke and one point of it was forced into the flesh. The injury, apparently was but slight, though painful and but little attention was paid to it at first. Two days later the wound became swollen and inflammation set in. A physician was called and heroic treatment begun at once, but the doctor says that he hopes to be able to avert it. The pretty young wife has a strong constitution and has always been very healthy.

Cornwell is very much alarmed over his wife's condition as well as embarrassed over the cause leading to it. He refuses to say anything concerning the accident.

According to the young man's mother who was a witness to the catastrophe, her son and his wife were driven out of the house by the excessive heat and were in the front yard.

He grasped her in a fond embrace. Not wishing to be hugged in so public a place the wife struggled to free herself. There was a cracking sound and Mrs. Cornwell put her arms to her side with a little scream of pain. A corset stay had been broken by the bear-like embrace of the ardent young husband and the wife injured.

In telling of the accident Cornwell's mother said: "Earl is a little bit too affectionate, but he cannot be blamed. I guess, for he thinks the world and all of his wife."

"Yes," was the reply of a neighbor. "I believe that is true, for he is always hugging her every time I see them together."

FINE PEARL

Stone Found by Young Man in Panther Creek.

Frank Pardon Says it is the Finest Specimen in Owensboro.

Mr. Frank Pardon, the jeweler, is the owner of the finest pearl in Owensboro, says the Owensboro Messenger. He has had it but a few hours but he is very proud of it. It is round and smooth and brilliant and weighs eleven grains. It was bought of a son of Esquire William Goodwine on Tuesday. Just what he paid for it could not be learned but the youth who found it went home rejoicing and Mr. Pardon is rejoicing still. He expects to rejoice still more when he shall have sold it for its real value.

Mr. Pardon says the pearl is a very rare and fine one and that he saw a necklace once containing ninety such which sold for $80,000. It was found in Panther creek while the youth was in bathing. He found one once before but it was not so fine as this.

Mr. Pardon declared last night that he would not take $250 for the pearl. He will send it to the dealers in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia and get their price upon it.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Reviewed by one Who Left the Party When Free
Silver Took It.

Heralded as the Enemy of Trusts
Yet it Was Dominated by Trust Magnates.

What clear, useful lesson do the proceedings of the recent national Democratic convention teach?

As a circus it was a success. Ringmaster David Bennett Hill, of New York; Trick Horse, Alton Brooks Parker, of the same State; Performing Monkeys, John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, who tried to imitate Ellihu Root as temporary chairman; and Champ Clark, who essayed the role of mimicking Uncle Joe Cannon as permanent presiding officer; Trust Busters, James M. Guiley, Standard Oil magnate from Pennsylvania; and August Belmont, of New York, recently chairman of the executive committee of the L. & N. Railroad Company, who together with David B. Hill secured the nomination of Alton Brooks Parker as their representative in the race for the Presidency, and gave the party as its nominee for the Vice Presidency Henry G. Davis, president of two railroad companies, president of a big national bank, and a leader of the coal trust.

The real sincerity of the platform is indicated by the fact that William Jennings Bryan and David Bennett Hill agreed in favor of its adoption. Oil and water, it is said, will not mix. When I was a country boy there was in every back yard a structure into which the wood ashes were poured, and from which came a liquid known as lye. This would bring oil and water together and produce soft soap. Champ Clark, in his opening address as permanent chairman, quoted the declaration of the psalmist. "In my haste I said all men are liars." David Bennett Hill exemplified how well this applied in his case, when in the committee room he assured Mr. Bryan that he did not know how Judge Parker stood on the financial question. Mr. Littleton, who was selected to present Parker's name to the convention, got into the same class by proclaiming that his candidate would accept the platform as made for him by the party, and thus secured the support of the friends of free silver, who, by striking out the action of the sub-committee in thanking Almighty God for the abundance of gold, had left the utterances of the Kansas City platform still in force as the attitude of the party on what was really the paramount question at St. Louis. The convention was so unruly that the chairman said "the rabble and the mob had controlled it from the beginning." He could not make himself heard without the use of a megaphone.

It was so indecent that obscenity and the vilest epithets were screamed from one of the halls to the other, in spite of the presence of at least 2,500 ladies, and no one tried to suppress it.

Mr. Bryan denounced the delegation from Illinois as "no better than train robbers." One of the prominent figures of the convention was Gov. Vardaman, of Mississippi, who secured his high place by opposing the education of the negroes, although he believes in training his horse or his dog. What was to me the most characteristic performance of the convention was the selection by the leaders of pitchfork Tillman, from South Carolina, to act as its mouthpiece in explaining its position with reference to the Parker telegram. He is the chief of the Saloon Trust in his State, and if he ever had a thought or impulse that was not sectional and narrow, it has failed to come under my observation. John Sharp Williams, temporary chairman of the convention, and leader of the Democrats in the House of Representatives at Washington, who was first to discuss the Parker telegram, said:

"My friends, we purposely made the platform silent on the question of the monetary standard. We made it silent because we all agreed that it was not an issue in this convention." Judge Parker thought it was an issue, and said that if he did not break the silence of the convention his nomination would be a Dead Sea apple to him. Senator Tillman contradicted Mr. Williams in his statement that all agreed the monetary issue was not an issue in this campaign, because he says he was one of those who wrestled over this question in the Committee on Resolutions, and knows "with how much of travail and how much of anger it was there discussed."

Mr. Bryan said that the committee was in session the last time sixteen hours, engaged in discussing the financial features, and added:

"When the platform was reported from the sub-committee it contained the gold standard plank, of which you know. It was discussed in committee. It was stated by members that it would be unfortunate to insert the plank, and finally, by a vote of 35 to 15, it was decided to exclude it."

Mr. Tillman, whose purpose was to bulldoze the convention into submission to Judge Parker's pronouncement, said that there were in the committee "pronounced views antagonistic on the financial question which had to be reconciled." He added that when he read Judge Parker's telegram he took it that "an indignity was being put upon us, that some one was attempting to trifle with us, and I swore by the Almighty God that I, for one, would not endure it."

He said that after considering the matter, he had concluded that Judge Parker "under the stress of clamor about him and in the New York newspapers and by telegrams, had felt he ought to declare his views, but that this did not change the platform," as was done four years before when Mr. Bryan announced in advance he would not accept the Kansas City nomination unless there came with it a new and distinct declaration in favor of free silver.

Judge Parker thought the monetary standard would be an issue, or else he would not have flouted his views with reference to it in the face of the convention. He knew that after he had been nominated he could do this with impunity, because to have then taken him off the ticket would have turned the factions loose and brought on hopeless war and dissension. The committee on resolutions believed it to be an issue, because they struggled with it two or three days and nights in red hot mood, and finally, by a vote of 35 to 15, decided that the free silver standard, which had been floating over the party for eight years, should not be taken down.

And yet John Sharp Williams, in trying to grease Judge Parker's telegram so that it could be swallowed by the delegates, said the monetary standard is not a probable issue in this campaign, and the convention, accepting this as the easiest way out of trouble and to vindicate old David as quoted by Champ Clark, wired to its nominee that the platform is silent on this subject, "because it is not regarded by us a possible issue in this campaign." Tillman, in closing his address, dramatically exclaimed: "We have our candidate; we have our platform. Are we going to change either?" To this there were loud cries of "No." They could not drop the candidate, and none knew this better than did he and his convention manager, David Bennett Hill, who was there to carry out the wishes of Pierpont Morgan, J. J. Hill, August Belmont and the Wall street crowd who want to punish Theodore Roosevelt for having the Supreme Court declare that the greatest, as well as the smallest, of the trusts are subject to the law and can be controlled by the people through their representatives.

The convention at St. Louis was a curious assemblage. It was heralded as the enemy of the trusts. It was called to order by James K. Jones, one of the chief stockholders in the Cotton Bale Trust. Its temporary chairman was John Sharp Williams, from a State which last fall declared against education for a majority of its citizens, and whose dominating influences despise "mudsills," whether white or black. Its permanent chairman was Champ Clark, a leader in the boodle State of Missouri, and one, too, who has never opened his mouth against the corruption and profligacy which every intelligent citizen could see was dominating the affairs of that Commonwealth.

Its committee on resolutions, by 35 to 15, voted against disturbing the declarations in 1896 and 1900 for free silver, and the convention indorsed this action. Mr. Hill received Mr. Bryan to secure the nomination for the Wall street candidate. The nominee, when he was safely in the saddle, wired that he had at last made up his mind that the Republicans were right in establishing the gold standard, and unless he let it be known he could not hope to be elected, and might as well give up the nomination. The convention said: "Go on, old boy; you know best what will get votes in the end. We want to win. What you say will not change the views of the party. When we elect you, the tidal wave will also give us Congress, and we can then work you. We are not much afraid of the backbone of a man who during eight years of agitation and struggle has never before told even so intimate a friend as Dave Hill where he stood."

If the convention or any member of it uttered one broad, patriotic sentiment it was not printed. There was no word of praise or encouragement for the navy which has brought us so much glory, and given such an impetus to our commerce during the past few years. Instead of recognizing the valor and sufferings of our soldier boys on foreign stands whilst upholding American liberty and law in Cuba, Puerto Rico, China and the Philippines, there is a demand that the army, now at its lowest notch under the law as it stands, shall be still further reduced. But I will discuss the details of the platform in future communications.

The thoughtful citizens, who want to do what is best for his country, need only read the proceedings of the Democratic and Republican conventions, respectively, to see where lies the path of duty. One was orderly, decent and admirably conducted in every respect. The other was a mob and torn by factions, and while tacitly admitting that its last two predecessors had acted foolishly, yet it would not say so, and reaffirmed some of their most asinine deliverances. It will not do to say that the difference is accounted for by the fact that at Chicago there was no contest. Practically the same can be said of St. Louis. Judge Parker really was without opposition, and he and his New York advisors selected old man Davis as his running mate in a trust-busting campaign. If neither the monetary standard nor the trusts are possible issues in this campaign. "Where are we at?" as the Alabama statesman said.

What is there in either ticket or platform put out by the St. Louis convention to induce any reasonable man to vote for a change? Are not the times good enough and did not Judge Parker in his telegram practically say that the Republicans had brought about our present prosperity by adopting the gold standard?

What Are We to Do?

What are we to do? Disease germs are in water, wine, whisky, beer, cider, milk and whatever we drink from thirst or pleasure. They are in bread, meats, fruits, vegetables, sugar, honey, molasses and whatever we eat from hunger or delight. So say scientists. Our fathers and mothers knew nothing of these germ destroyers of health, happiness and life, so they ate, drank and made merry to a good, peaceful old age. But we know and fear to eat, drink or sleep, for they are in the air we breathe, in the sunlight that warms our blood and in the darkness that chills our body. Some people know too much, or make believe they do; some people know too little, or think they do. Such is man, possibly woman also, a mass of pretensions, high or low.

A Strange Telegram.

He always had worn a Van Dyke beard, but was anxious to have it shaved off, when every masculine under seventy was going barefaced.

His wife objected, for, said she: "What can I do to myself that will make me look as much younger as that will do you?"

As a dutiful and considerate husband he followed, until one fatal day when in the barber's chair he yielded to the tempter and gave the word to "let her go." The result was startling—he certainly was much changed and, oh, how disastrously young he appeared. He rose weakly and went to the nearest telegraph office—he would get the worst word before facing that wife at home. His message ran:

"Prepare for shock. Have had beard taken off."

Mrs. Belle Tabor was seriously hurt here in Hartford last Saturday by the running away of the team which she was driving. The team which Mrs. Tabor was driving became frightened as she started down the slope on Union street near the Hocker property and dashed down the street to the corner at the Hartford House. Here the team turned short and the buggy pole was run against a tree which threw Mrs. Tabor violently from the buggy to the pavement, which rendered her unconscious. She sustained a fracture of the hip and arm and other less serious injuries. At last reports she was recovering.

Hubert Baker who was arrested at Rockport the latter part of last week charged with carrying a concealed weapon to-wit: a pistol, was tried before Judge Miller Saturday and was fined $25.00 and sentenced to ten days in jail. When the officer attempted to arrest Baker he resisted, and quite a combat between him and the officer occurred in which Baker struck the officer with a pair of brass knuckles and shot at him with a .38 caliber long barrel pistol. He was at last overcome and brought to Hartford and lodged in jail. Later a charge of shooting with intent to kill was preferred against him. He was arranged for examining trial yesterday but he waived examination and was held to await the action of the November grand jury. The last charge against Baker, is a penitentiary offense and if he is proven guilty he will get a term.

Killing at Echols.

On last Saturday night at a "negro festival" at Echols, Bob Porter shot William Murphy in the left shoulder and arm with a shot gun. Murphy lived until Wednesday morning when he died as a result of blood poisoning. The wound was made with number four shot. Murphy lived at Rockport but worked in the machine shop at Echols. Porter made his escape and has not yet been apprehended. It is reported the shooting was entirely unprovoked.

No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilatation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Documentary evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to Indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise. Smothering Spells. Pain in Chest, Left Shoulder and arm. Discomfort in Lying on one side. Flitting Spells. Nervous Cough. Swelling of Feet and Ankles. Paleness of Face and Lips. Palpitations. Nightmare. Irregular Pulse.

"I have great faith in Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure," and speak of its merits to all I know. I have been cured, and now go up and down stairs with ease, where three weeks ago I could hardly walk. I am still in the 'healer' the Heart Cure did so much for me. I had it a year ago for months. It is now cured. I am getting on my feet. I don't drink tea. I am 80. N. C. O. Z. Miss.

Y. M. C. A. Growth in Kentucky.

A resume of the growth and development of the Young Men's Christian Association work in Kentucky for the past three years, under the supervision of the State Executive Committee, has been sent to the International Committee, and will appear in the Year Book of 1904. It contains the following information:

During the past three years the growth of the various departments of work in the State—city, railroad, student and county—has been notable, and has been especially characterized by a broader vision of the field to be occupied by each Association, and by a more systematic and aggressive occupancy of the fields in which work is being done. This period witnessed the Jubilee of the Association work in Kentucky, commemorating the semi-centennial of the organization of the first association in the State, and of the quarter-centennial of the organization of the State work. 551 delegates attended the Jubilee Convention at Lexington, the largest Association Convention (State or International) ever held in the South.

There are now 74 Associations in the State. Ten of these are city, seven railroad, twenty-seven student, and thirty town. Fifty-one secretaries are employed. Two assistants have been added to the secretaries force of the State Committee, which is now as follows: State Secretary, Secretary City and Railroad Department. With this report, the State Secretary, Henry E. Rosevear, completes fifteen years of service in the State.

AN ENCOURAGING GROWTH.

In the material equipment of the Association of the State there has been an encouraging growth. Buildings have been opened for the railroad department at Ashland and Corbin, costing $8,000 and $6,500 respectively. Lexington has raised $40,000 for a new building now in process of construction. A building at Covington has been assured by the securing of $50,000 in subscriptions. Hartford, Ohio county, owns the first county Association building in the State. Building movements are in progress in a number of other communities. The Louisville Association raised a jubilee fund of $19,000 to cover the mortgage indebtedness and cost of improvements on its building.

The railroad work has made more rapid and steady progress during the past three years than in any previous period in our history. Two new railroad departments have been organized and preliminary work begun at two other points. Institutes for the study of religious and educational needs of the railroad men in Kentucky, and the Association's relation thereto, have been held by the State Committee and have borne fruit in a larger and more aggressive work in these departments.

In the student department there has been an outward and inward growth. There has been a decided increase in the number of Associations and in the material equipment, and the aggregate membership and enrollment in bible study and mission study classes surpasses that of any previous period. The annual conference of Presidents, the State Student Conference and the supervision of the Student Secretary of the State Committee, have been vital factors in the development of this department.
